

WILL ANNOUNCE HIS CANDIDACY

Davidson Ready To Throw His Caster In The Political Arena Again.

TALK REGARDING LA FOLLETTE

Statements Made That He Would Like To See Wisconsin
Go Democratic This Fall And Bryan Elected,
For His Own Personal Reasons.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., May 28.—Governor Davidson has prepared his announcement formally placing himself before the republicans of the state as a candidate for re-election and election as governor. He may issue it today, but will not delay it longer than the present week. His blank nominating petitions are already being sent out to all the counties of the state and the formal announcement is planned to be made so that the securing of signatures to the petitions will immediately follow.

The governor is not disturbed by the candidacy of ex-mayor Becker of Milwaukee. Many of the governor's friends believe that Becker's candidacy may serve to keep others from entering the race, and no one is heard to express an opinion that the discredited rich young Milwaukee politician will cut much of a figure in the campaign. Among the absurd rumors heard about the political headquarters here today is one to the effect that Senator La Follette would be pleased to have Wisconsin cast its vote in the presidential electoral college for William Jennings Bryan. This is one of the stories circulated in the state capital, where politics are hot and it is said by some of the Senators' bitterest enemies that he has already passed this word to his closest followers that he will support Bryan in the state at the fall election.

To substantiate this story the enemies of the Senator state that the La Follette followers are already declaring that this state is all shut to pieces and that the outlook is very doubtful for a republican victory this fall. It is also claimed they are talking of the democratic chances being better now than any time since George W. Peck, defeated John C. Spooner for the governorship, eighteen years ago at the time the famous compulsory education law brought about the republican defeat. They even go further by stating that six years ago when La Follette was having one of his bitter fights for nomination and election as governor, it was known he was more than friendly with Bryan, communicating by letter and long distance telephone. Another feature, the calmly howlers say is a sign of the chaos they make, is that the Wisconsin Senator is now intimate with the democrats at Washington and his stand on the emergency currency bill is quoted.

Many people agree with the stand Senator La Follette and other members of the Wisconsin congressional delegation have taken in opposition to emergency asset currency, but there is seen a plausible reason why Senator La Follette might wish to see Taft elected next November. If Taft is elected president he will doubtless continue in office for eight years, and at the end of that time there may be a complete reversal of sentiment in this country and the chances of the election of La Follette might be nil.

If Bryan is elected this time, the republicans would not nominate Taft four years hence and it is quite possible that La Follette would have a good chance for the republican nomination.

Here in Madison it is believed that the abyss between La Follette and Davidson is as wide as ever, and that the La Follette people would not be displeased to see the present governor fall of re-election. A bit of sentiment attaches here: La Follette and in the gubernatorial chair for five years and if Governor Davidson gets another term he too will have half a decade of the governorship.

Occasionally a story circulates in the gossip to the effect that the La Follette people will bring out a candidate for governor, but there is very slight likelihood of this. Sometimes the name of District Attorney McGovern of Milwaukee is mentioned in this connection, but he is already a candidate for the senate and would hardly be bothered politically by changing horses at this time. Outside of the immediate circle surrounding La Follette, there is no bitterness of factionalism running and it is believed that this matter will hardly dare to attack Governor Davidson again, though they love him not at all.

DEMOCRATS OF WEST VIRGINIA CONVE

Contests Over the State Ticket Attract more attention than National Issues.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 28.—The democratic state convention for the selection of the delegates-at-large to the national convention at Denver and the nomination of three candidates for judges of the supreme court of appeals met here today and was called to order at noon. The contests over the state ticket to be nominated in July is attracting more attention among the delegates and other party leaders than is the work of the present convention, which is of purely a routine character. The indications are that the convention will endorse Bryan for the presidential nomination, though Judge Gray could have won strong support in this state had he fought for it.

PASTOR CELEBRATES HIS 71ST BIRTHDAY

Well Known Theatrical Manager,
Singer and Minister Observes Anniversary.

New York, May 28.—"Tony" Pastor, known to three generations as a singer, minister and theatrical manager, was seventy-one years old today. As usual he received a large number of birthday greetings from those of the profession whom he helped to make famous, among the number being Lilian Russell, May Irwin, Low Fields, and Nat Goodwin.

Mr. Pastor has been a figure in the theatrical world since he was six years old, when he made his first appearance as a nut singer in a place on Broadway. Since the close of the civil war he has controlled a playhouse of his own in this city. For many years he had a theatre on the Bowery and once he ventured over onto Broadway, but this did not prove very successful.

For the past twenty years—it will be just twenty years next October—"Tony" Pastor's Theatre has been a landmark in East Fourteenth street. The home is a part of the Turnham Hall building. When that famous home further up town, as it has been called, was decided to be pulled down, Mr. Pastor and his temple of vaudeville will be obliterated to vanish. But the popular "Tony" is not worried over the prospect. It will probably be some years yet before the change is made and when it comes, he is sure or late, Mr. Pastor is ready to retire with an ample bank account and a magnificent home over on Long Island.

Convention.

The association has stated for discussion four leading topics that are of great interest to the general public as well as to the legal profession. These topics will deal with the control of public utility corporations, the use of injunctions by Federal courts as to state laws, and labor unions and other similar organizations from the lawyer's standpoint.

WESTERN OLYMPIC TRIALS ON TODAY

The list of events is as follows: One hundred meters (100 yds), 200 meters (218.6 yds), 400 meters (437.2 yds), 800 meters (874.4 yds), 1,500 meters (1,633.6 yds), 110 meters hurdles (120.2 yds), 400 meters hurdles (437.2 yds), 3,200 meters steeple chase (3,197.6 yds), eight-kilometers run (five miles), standing broad jump, standing high jump, running broad jump, running high jump, pole vault, hammer throw, weight putting, discus throw (free style and Greek style), javelin throw (with javelin held in the middle and hand, step and jump).

This program embraces all of the Olympic events excepting the Marathon trials, which will be held at a later date, the three-mile team race and the relay race.

NEW YORK HONORS MEMORY OF ITS FIRST GOVERNOR

Former Vice-President And First Governor Of New York Re-Interred Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, May 28.—There was a brief pause today in the strenuous routine of business and pleasure in the metropolis, while city officials and the populace generally joined in a tribute of respect to the memory of George Clinton, Revolutionary soldier, Vice-President of the United States and first Governor of the State of New York.

The remains of Governor Clinton were recently disinterred in Washington, where they rested for nearly a century and will be reburied Saturday at Kingston, which was the old home of Governor Clinton and the place where he took the oath of office as the first chief executive of the Empire State.

During the greater part of today the remains lay in state in the historic Governor's Room in the City Hall, where they were viewed by thousands of people. The front of the City Hall was draped in black, and the flags were hung at half-mast.

The revenue cutter Mohawk landed the body at the Battery shortly after nine o'clock this morning. As the cutter crossed the river from Jersey City minute guns were fired by the naval militia gunboat Wasp, and the guns of Governor's Island took up the salute as the body was landed.

The parade from the Battery to the City Hall was headed by a platoon of mounted police, behind whom marched the United States Military Band, Major General Grant, accompanied by his aids, led the regular troops. These consisted of a battalion of artillery from Fort Mifflin and Tompkins. The Marine Band headed the naval section of the parade, and was followed by a battalion of marines from the Brooklyn navy yard. Then came the naval band, leading the sailors from the battleship New Hampshire.

The coffin containing the body was drawn on a gun carriage and was draped with a United States flag, the sword carried by Clinton in the Revolutionary army was placed on the bier. Behind the coffin marched Mayor McClellan and the city officials, the board of aldermen, the citizens' committee of seventy-five, and the descendants of the Governor. Then came the band of the famous Old Guard, the Old Guard itself and the Veteran Corps of Artillery. The rear of the procession was brought up by the Sons of the Revolution, the Society of the Cincinnati and other patriotic organizations.

The route of the procession was from the Battery to Bridge street, passing Francis's Tavern, where Clinton entertained George Washington, up Broad street to Wall. Thence the parade swung into Broadway, and passed St. Paul's Church, where the Governor used to worship, to the City Hall.

During the hours that the remains lay in state at the City Hall they were surrounded by a guard of honor. Late this afternoon the journey was resumed to Kingston. The trip will be made up the Hudson on the gunboat Wasp, which will be escorted by a flotilla of torpedo boats.

TEMPLARS' SERVICES ON ASCENSION DAY

Janesville Commandery Will Observe
It for First Time This Evening
—Public Invited.

In response to an order issued by Commander R. J. Hart, Janesville Commandery No. 2, Knights Templar, will hold Ascension Day services at Masonic hall, commencing at eight o'clock this evening. The Rev. D. Quincey Grubbs of Evansville will conduct the services and he will be accompanied here by a delegation of Knights from that city. One of the Milwaukee Commanderies was the first in Wisconsin to observe this day and so far as known the Janesville Commandery will be the second. All sojourning Knights are cordially invited to participate and the same invitation is extended to the Masonic fraternity and their families and the general public. Members of the Commandery are expected to be present at the asylum as near seven o'clock as possible in order to dispose of the preliminary regular business of the order.

This is an important year for Templarism in Wisconsin. The fifteenth convocation of the Grand Commandery will be held at Madison, October 13, 1908. As Janesville No. 2 is one of the three Commanderies which constituted the Grand Commandery of Wisconsin every effort will naturally be made to have a good representation. One of the features will be a competitive drill by teams from various Commanderies in the state and an effort is being made to organize one of these teams here.

TEN COACHES PASS OVER SMALL CHILD

Has Narrow Escape from Train Run by a Janesville Crew Yesterday Afternoon.

As train No. 629, leaving Chicago at four o'clock in the afternoon and reaching Janesville at 6:50, was passing near Mayfair yesterday afternoon engineer James Lewis, who lives at 150 Court street, noticed a small child playing very near the track. She was little two-year-old Julia Weigle, who had wandered with some other children from her home on Forty-ninth avenue, Chicago, to play in the sand on the tracks. Engineer Lewis rang the bell and blew the whistle, but the child did not move. He then tried to check his heavy train of ten cars but was unable to do so. As the train rushed by the child Lewis was horrified to see her drawn in under the engine by the suction of the heavy train.

As quickly as possible the train was stopped and conductor J. J. Dullin of this city and engineer Lewis and the rest of the crew ran back expecting to find the mangled body of the child. She was found sitting in the middle of the track with a slight cut on her forehead and on her hip. Though the engine and several coaches had passed over her she was practically uninjured.

Cyclone and Tornado.
The cyclone is formed by the rushing of air at a high pressure into or toward a center of low pressure, in constantly narrowing circles or spirals, and, through much of the area covered, at a constantly increasing velocity. A tornado has been duly named a "secondary cyclone." Its extent is less, but its energy is more intense than that of the cyclone.

Huge Growth of Crime in Gotham

NEW YORK.—Many interesting details regarding the work done by the New York police department during the last year are contained in the annual report of Police Commissioner Hingham. The commissioner says that there has been marked improvement in the efficiency of the department during the year. According to the statistics tabulated by the commissioner, this was an exceedingly careless and lawless town during the 12 months of 1907.

The arrests for felonies were twice the number of those in 1906. The arrests made by the detective bureau were several thousand greater than those of the preceding year, and almost three times those of 1905. The fines imposed by the courts were correspondingly greater. The pictures added to the rogues' gallery were twice those of 1906, and treble the number of 1905. Twice as many persons were reported missing in 1907 as in the preceding year, and a relatively large number of unknown dead were found.

As the result of an investigation into the advisability of using police dogs, the commissioner announces that trained muzzled dogs are being experimented with in the suburbs. The commissioner says that "no further disciplinary legislation for the police department is needed at present."

The commissioner makes the following recommendations: "Pawnbrokers, of whom there are 150 in Manhattan alone, should be required to furnish the police daily with a written report showing articles pawned with them and by whom."

"At present all the machinery of primaries and elections is placed in the hands of the police. How is it possible then for our citizens to expect members of the force to be free from political influence? While it is probably hopeless to mention the subject, it is none the less true and should none the less be realized by the citizens of this city that if the police are to be removed from political influence the whole election law will have to be radically changed."

The commissioner in his report makes the grim statement that in 1907 there were all told 294,095 arrests, 192,680 had been made by the uniformed force and the remainder by the detective bureau.

At the opening of the year the number of policemen of all classes in the department was 8,872, while at the close of the year there were 9,410 on the force with four vacancies and 51 men on probation.

New Law May Stop Women Smokers

WOMEN who are fond of an after-dinner cigarette have secured freedom to indulge in it at certain Broadway restaurants, only to lose it again, according to the fathers of an ordinance which will soon be introduced at a meeting of the board of aldermen. On New Year's eve one of the big Broadway restaurants took down the bars to women smokers, and two or three of the others immediately followed suit.

But the indulgence in a habit which has long been recognized in Europe does not meet the approval of certain of the city fathers and as a result an attempt will be made to put an end to it before it has hardly begun. The ordinance will provide for a fine or imprisonment for the proprietor of any hotel, restaurant or other place of public gathering who allows a woman to smoke, even a little gold-tipped cigarette, in his establishment.

The privilege of smoking was a New Year's gift to the women of New York by Proprietor Martin of Martin's cafe. If it worked well the rule was to be made permanent. "Smoking by ladies is never objectionable," he said. "The smartest women in New York smoke, so why should Parliamentian proprietors rule against this mode of procedure any more than against the drinking of cocktails or highballs? Why not be honest? One thing I want to emphasize, I mean by this announcement that ladies may smoke. Some women who smoke are quite as offensive to the eye as when they drink. A lady smoking a cigarette is not so objectionable as another kind of woman drinking a cup of tea."

The lifting of the ban on women in public places is bound to be one of the subjects of hot discussion in pulpits and other places in the early part of 1908. It is only a few weeks since the hotel and restaurant keepers of the town, in reference to the case of a well-known visitor, showed themselves to be of agreed opinion that a precedent was necessary before the prohibitory rule could be suspended. Patrons of well-known restaurants, it has been told, have danced on the tables in the cold gray dawn of the first day of the new year. Perhaps this philosophical boniface will contend that a "lady" performing a skirt dance on such a stage is not so objectionable as "another kind of woman" drinking a glass of champagne.

Citizens Are Traveling Killing Pace

NEW YORKERS are traveling the pace that kills. The health department finds that they are living too fast, worry too much and don't exercise enough. All this, they say, is causing an epidemic of heart disease. The statistics for 11 months of 1907, published the other day, show 1,246 more deaths from heart disease than last year. "With what figures they have at hand for this month in the bureau of vital statistics it is known that the number of deaths from heart disease for the entire year of 1907 was almost 1,500 more than in 1906.

"This record is most surprising," said Dr. Darling, the health commissioner, "but I don't see what is to be done about it. The only way to bring about any change in conditions is to let the public realize the extent of this enormous increase, and people may possibly mend their ways. Of course the grippe epidemic is alarming this year, and undoubtedly has had much to do with the increase. I am afraid the citizens of New York city are traveling a little too swift and would do well to put on the brakes and slow down. Lack of exercise, over-eating, intemperance, and generally speaking, high living, are responsible for the remarkable increase. Folks don't walk enough nowadays. We have become so accustomed to the pell-mell rush of the age that our bodies are being neglected. Rapid transit facilities have probably caused us to jump into subways or on elevated trains and surface cars in our hurry to reach a point, and we have entirely forgotten the habit of walking. We worry too much in the present day. That is responsible for heart weakening."

Subway Cars Not Lodging Houses

A nickel lodging house for persons, who, by paying a single fare, have been able to sleep all night in the cars while the trains ran up and down the line. Early in the history of the subway it was discovered by the underworld that, instead of shivering on park benches, a far more attractive and comfortable manner of passing the winter nights was to pay a nickel to get into the subway and then ride in lighted and heated cars as long as desired, an arrangement made possible by the changing from local to express trains.

One could literally ride forever for five cents, with plenty of newspapers dropped by other passengers to read and the enticing chance of picking up a valuable bundle forgotten by some other traveler. As a result an army of "subway sleepers" sprung up, many of whom waited for certain guards with whom they were familiar, to insure a peaceful rest, giving them in return a cigar or a dime.

At the height of this practice it was estimated that subway trains were accommodating more sleepers than even the biggest hotel in the city. But, as usual, a good thing was worked to death, and hereafter no one can ride farther than the end of the line without the payment of another fare. Would-be sleepers will hereafter be rudely thrust forth into the night.

No Law Against Filchiness.

Certainly, Eustace, you may wear a striped suit with wedge-shaped pockets, and low shoes with buckles on them, and a hat that turns up in front and down in the back, and carry a swagger stick with ribbon tied to it, if you want to. The city comptroller has looked up the question and finds there is no law against it. The public is therefore quite helpless in the matter. —Kansas City Star.

TAKE AN APPEAL TO THE SUPREME COURT

Aetna Insurance Company Appeals the Thompson Case—Suits Was Tried in Local Courts.

While the sheriff is still in charge of the property of Thompson and Sons in Wisconsin, on an execution issued Monday by the firm of Fisher and Oestreich of this city in behalf of their client, Frank Raltes, the suit itself has been appealed to the supreme court by the attorneys for the Aetna Insurance company which indemnifies the defendant company from loss by damage suits. The suit in question grew out of an injury received by Frank Raltes, an employee of the company, and was tried in the circuit court here, a judgment of $1,500 being obtained. This judgment has not been paid and on Monday last Mr. Oestreich appeared before Judge Landis in Chicago in support of a motion to have the claim against the company declared provable in bankruptcy. The judge decided it was not and immediately an execution was issued against the property of the company, tying up all property of the company in Wisconsin. Judge Landis refused to recognize the claim as provable and the attorneys for the insurance company have taken an appeal to the supreme court. This morning the property was released upon the payment of the sheriff's fees and terms amounting to $74.80. The bond for an appeal has been filed showing that the case is to be heard by the state supreme court on its merits.

WAR OPENED ON SLOT MACHINES

SUPT. BUELL MAKES COMPLAINT AGAINST MILLER BROTHERS.

POOL ROOM PROPRIETORS

High School Boys Alleged to Have Stolen Cash to Play Nickel and Penny Wheels of Fortune.

Superintendent H. C. Buell of the Janesville public schools has opened war on the penny and nickel slot machines. He complained to Chief Appleby today that high school boys have become so infatuated with the gambling devices at the billiard and pool room run by Jeremiah A. and Charles Miller at 107 West Milwaukee street as to steal money in various quarters, including the school classroom, to continue playing them. When the culprits were found out they blamed the machines for their downfall and, it is alleged, have agreed to testify on the witness stand.

There are other slot machines in the city but the proprietors of the establishments where they are located do not in all instances permit minors to play them. Hence, though as such as do not pay exact returns for every piece of money invested are said to be operated contrary to law, no one is likely to offer evidence against the owners.

The two Miller brothers appeared in municipal court this afternoon and their preliminary examination was set for June 4. They were allowed their liberty without bail pending the hearing. Atty. Cunningham & Adair have been retained to defend them. The fine for the offense is from $1.00 to $50.00.

After contemplation of the splendid proportions which have been erected memorials of vast and awe-inspiring to other departed heads of the republic.

He, one is inspired with a new sort of sympathetic affection upon approaching the tomb of Benjamin Harrison at Indianapolis. No pillared vault marks the last resting place of the twenty-third president of the United States. No martial sarcophagus is open for the worship of the patriot. The only shrine is a solid block of plainly carved granite, standing open and amidst the trees in this Indianapolis cemetery. Ex-President Harrison died on March 13, 1901. The monument which marks his grave bears this simple inscription:

"Benjamin Harrison, August 20, 1833—March 13, 1901. Lawyer and Publicist. Colonel. Seventeenth Indiana Volunteer, War 1862-1865. Breivoted Lieutenant General 1866. United States Senator 1881-1887. President 1889-1893. Statesman, yet blind to truth, of soul sincere, in action faithful and in honor clear." The very simplicity of the monument and the epitaph are the strongest possible tributes to the sterling character of the man whose grave it marks. Mr. Harrison was elected president of the United States in 1888, defeating Grover Cleveland for re-election with 233 electoral votes to Cleveland's 168. Despite the fact that Harrison had this overwhelming majority in the electoral college, the peculiar condition existed that in the popular vote Cleveland had 5,538,233 votes to Harrison's 5,430,216 votes for Harrison. In 1892 the tables were turned and Mr. Cleveland defeated Mr. Harrison with 257 electoral votes to 145 for Harrison.

Mr. Harrison was born at North Bend, Ohio, the little village which still possesses the bones of his illustrious grandfather, William Henry Harrison, who was also a president of this republic. The Harrison family is one of the two which have twice possessed the presidency; the other case was that of John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

MORRISSEY IN TRAINING.

Winner of Boston Marathon Race Working Hard For Olympic Classic.

Thomas J. Morrissey, the New York state winner of the recent Boston Marathon race, has started active training for the Olympic classic. Always in the best of condition, the Mercury Athletic club (Yonkers) runner will need but little rest hard work to prime him for the big race in England. He has the speed and the strength to carry it and will devote his time to developing his wind. Morrissey, by the way, has his own ideas regarding the proper way to train. He does not use tobacco in any form; neither does he drink. But, all the expert opinion in the world to the contrary notwithstanding, he believes in eating whatever appeals most to his appetite, cake, pie and other pastry included, provided, of course, that it is of wholesome ingredients.

Starting with a four mile walk and alternating each day between walking and running, Morrissey will gradually increase his daily task until shortly before he sails for England, when he will take a twelve mile spin at top speed, averaging 5 minutes 50 seconds to the mile, the pace at which he expects to travel in the big race. On the other side he will follow practically the same routine, although the difference in the climate may make it advisable to lay out another line of action.

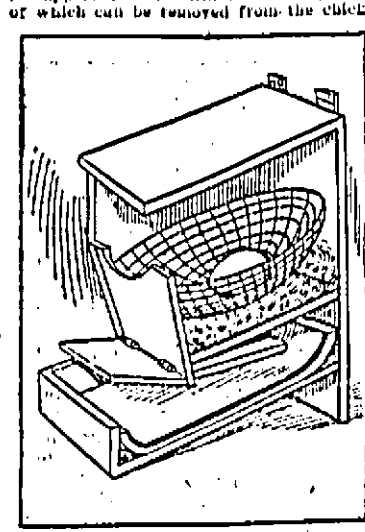

Morrissey's great victory in the Boston event, the form displayed by the men who finished behind him and that shown by a number of competitors in the Missouri Athletic club's run have about settled the idea that this country is weak in the distance races, and no one would be greatly surprised by an American victory in an event in which we were believed to have only a remote chance of scoring a single point.

SCIENCE AND INVENTION.
SANITARY POULTRY NEST

Can Be Readily Removed and Cleaned When Required.

The present day tendency to employ sanitary measures in the dairy, the stable, the doghouse, etc., has at last extended to the poultry yard. The industrious hen is to be provided with a sanitary nest which can be easily removed and cleaned on occasion. This recent development is shown in the accompanying illustration. The nest is made of wire and is supported in a suitable housing, both of which can be removed from the chick-end-house when cleaning is necessary. When thus removed they can be conveniently placed in a suitable receptacle containing boiling water and thoroughly cleaned of all impurities and undesirable insects.

SCIENCE NOTES

A system of communicating orders to the engineers of a train in the cab while the train is in motion and one which is both audible and visible, has been adopted by the North-Eastern Railway, of England. In the cab is a dial showing a small semaphore arm by which the condition of the signals are given. Two pointers indicate the route. A bell in the cab directs the attention of the engineer to the indications when made. Connection is made with metallic bars fitted between and parallel with the rails by a metallic brush carried on the engine. The bars are insulated by ordinary telegraph insulators of porcelain. The first bar with which the brushes come in contact causes the bell to ring in the cab. A hundred yards further on a second bar is encountered which sets the semaphore. The signals received are duplicates of the signals in the signalman's tower and are not intended to displace the semaphores now in use, but to supplement them, especially during foggy and stormy weather.

An incandescent lamp in its green shade will, when turned upward toward the ceiling, spread a soft and pleasantly diffused light, pleasantly enough, in a room where no reading is to be done. When the lamp is used in this way no shadows are cast.

During the year ending last month there were 485 new electric plants put into operation in the United States, Canada and Mexico, which makes the total 5,348. The activity in the electrical industry from the last year, however, shows a decided indication to recover from the financial stress which has been affecting all business during the past year. The gain is equally pronounced when the item of capitalization is considered.

The Paris Academy of Sciences has appointed a committee to consider a suggestion, by M. Bouquet de la Grye concerning the application of wireless telegraphy to the problem of the determination of longitude at sea. The idea is to utilize the wireless telegraph station of the Eiffel Tower in order to send, for instance, every night at midnight a "Hertzian signal" giving the time of the meridian of Paris. M. Bouquet de la Grye thinks that if a station were established at the Peak of Tenerife signals could be detected completely around the earth.

The International Congress of Navigation to be held in St. Petersburg in June is organized by the International Association. The chief aim of the congress will be the consideration of questions connected with river and canal navigation and the industrial and commercial use of waterways and reports.

TWO BLOCKS OF CHICAGO HOTELS WHICH WILL BE THE CENTER OF THE FIGHT FOR THE REPUBLICAN PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION.

Reeling from left to right the hotels are: the Congress hotel, the Auditorium Annex and the Auditorium. The division line between the Annex and the Auditorium proper is the farthest alley on street apparent in the picture. The rooms from which Secretary Taft will direct his presidential campaign are on the second floor, directly on this corner. Vice President Fairbanks has engaged the entire adjacent floor.

Useful Qualities of Alum.
Alum should never be absent from any household. It has a very good effect if applied to bleeding wounds, as it checks the loss of blood. Botted in milk in small quantities it is good for toothache. It must be held in the mouth, not swallowed. For bleeding of the mouth or tongue a wash in cold water in which alum has been dissolved is very effective.

TURRET WINNER IN SEVERE TEST

MONITOR FLORIDA BOMBARDED
BY THE ARKANSAS.

SLIGHT DAMAGE. IS DONE

Our Mechanism Little Hurt by Terrible Impact—Military Mast Also Withstands the Shots.

Old Point Comfort, May 28.—The biggest naval gun, the heaviest projectile and the highest explosive known, combined with close range and deadly aim were allowed Wednesday to work their deadly havoc on the turret plate of the monitor Florida.

The result is declared to be a victory for turret construction, and this notwithstanding the 11-inch hardened steel plate was blackened and broken, the seams of the turret apron and the rivets and screws loosened and twisted.

It was not five minutes after the terrible impact that the finely balanced mechanism of the turret was being worked with perfect ease and the 15-inch gun on the left side was trained at will. Inside the turret, where stand the gunners and gun crew, the havoc was much less apparent than from the outside. Examination showed that of the many delicately adjusted instruments for fire control, sighting and operating the turret, few if any were out of working order.

"If this had happened in battle the Florida would be fighting yet," said one of the rear admirals, with enthusiasm.

Fighting Mast Wins Out.

Then followed a futile attempt to destroy the newly-designed fighting mast on the stern of the Florida. After five shots of the guns had gone through it, the mast stood firm.

"Forty shots would not bring it down and no enemy would waste ammunition and time shooting at it," was the expert comment.

It was predicted that all new ships will be equipped with battle masts of this design. The story of the "shooting up" of the Florida by the Arkansas, however, is not contained in this technical statement of results. It was an event in which keen edge of expectation was not dulled by the realization, Rear admirals and brigadier generals together with their juniors, scurried under protected decks and then hopped out again as quickly, to look for the damage done. Every naval bureau was represented, likewise the ordnance and artillery of the army.

Florida Prepared for Test.

The scene of the demonstration was Hampton roads. The Florida, which has been in the hands of experts for some time, presented the appearance of a seasoned warrior. She lay with her nose pointing out through the Virginia capes, near Thimble Shoal light and about four miles from Old Point Comfort. Her steam was up and a large American flag floated aloft. Back of the bridges on the upper structure there hung the weekly wash of several jacks. But most striking in her appearance was the "leaning tower" on her stern, the woven pipe military mast, resembling a huge wasp's nest. On top of its 125 feet of height was a broad platform, where two dummy sailors fashioned from boards stood bravely looking down on two more dummies of the same pattern on the turret forward. One of the two big guns which protrude from this turret had been removed and a "cripple" gun occupied its place.

Just 342 yards on the inside of the Florida lay her sister ship, the Arkansas. The distance looked cruelly close as the big guns on the latter ship prepared to take unerring aim.

Worse Than in Warfare.

"This is such a test as would never occur in actual warfare," remarked a rear admiral, as the big party of officers boarded the Arkansas. "The aim will be perfect; the distance is no closer than the impact will be at its full velocity and the part of the Florida to be hit is the weakest."

All of these points presented themselves to the party of naval officers on the little cruiser Montgomery, as the bright morning sun, fleecy white clouds and gentle breeze added the inspiration of a perfect day.

Geneva, May 28.—Princess Amelia Louise of Fürstenberg and Gustav Kozlin, an employee of an automobile firm, with whom she eloped recently from Vienna, have been traced to Zurich by detectives. Learning that their whereabouts had been discovered, however, they immediately left.

WORK FOR INDIVIDUALS.

How to Make a Town Attractive and Wide Awake.

During the warm, summer-like days we experience in the spring our thoughts turn (not lightly) to things rural. We long for green fields, shady nooks, the rippling brooks and singing birds. Some of these charms are present about every town and village, and if the place be clean and neat, the streets well planted, foothills and canyons not too far away, the springtime proves a harvest. Many do not care for the extremely dull monotony of our seaside resorts and choose rather the charms of the woodland and pasture, green and fresh. Lucky the town whose appearance attracts the summer visitor.

A large part of the responsibility for attractiveness lies with the individual. See that your hedge is trimmed, your fence and gate in good repair and neatly painted. Your sidewalk, whether of cement or gravel (wood is scarcely permissible), should be in good condition. The street and gutters in front of your property must be kept free from weeds, paper and other rubbish, and all such should be burned in the yard, not in the street. Cut your lawn often, trim your trees and plants and give all about you an "alive and up to date" look. After you have done this see what you can do to awaken a neighborhood interest in improvement. It may be you can only organize a "block beautiful club," or the movement may assume dimensions that would warrant the formation of an improvement society. Civic beauty is an asset, civic ugliness a liability. Which will you choose?

UNTIDY PARKS.

Useful Suggestion For Keeping Pleasure Grounds in Order.

A good hint for keeping parks clean is contained in the following views of a New York man who believes in order:

"I wish that every man or woman who goes into one of our beautiful parks on Sunday morning from now on could have received the training I did when camping out as a boy in Canada. I was taught to pick up every bit of paper, every scrap of every kind left over from a meal, and to put it in the camp fire. And after all the refuse had been consumed we always had to see to it that the fire was put out so that there would be no danger of starting a forest fire. The result of such training is to make one careful of other folks' rights, and that would work out here splendidly."

"For if men and women who went into a park on Sunday morning and used a portion of their newspaper as a protection from the dampness of the earth would only pick it up and carry it off with them to deposit it in the nearest receptacle for such things the general appearance of our pleasure grounds would be improved immensely. It distresses me to see the beautiful lawns marred by these bits of paper at a time when they ought to look their best and as they would look all summer long if each individual would do his share in keeping them in order."

Get Trade by Advertising.

The best way in which the merchants in the towns and smaller cities can fight the mail order houses is to advertise. They know most of their patrons personally, can show them the goods before they buy them, have many other advantages over the mail order house and in almost every instance can sell just as cheap if not cheaper, remarks the Bluecross (Ohio) Informer.

If the home merchant lacks foresight and is too penurious to properly advertise his goods, why should the publisher exert himself to keep the trade at home for him? If solicitations on the part of the publisher fail to educate the merchant to the fact that he must advertise if he wants to keep up with the procession, then nothing is left to the merchant but to learn in the school of experience, and if the teaching of that renowned school are of no effect on him then there is no place for him, and eventually his place in the commercial world will be taken up by some more enterprising competitor.

How Chicago Cleaned Up.

Chicago's general cleaning day this year, according to the reports, was a big success. The cleaning of the vacant lots of the city was assigned to the school children, and they went at the job with vigor and enthusiasm. When school adjourned at 3:30 p. m. they were provided by the janitors of the various schools with the necessary tools, and within an hour the fruits of their labors were to be seen in huge piles of waste paper, tin cans, old shoes and miscellaneous refuse.

Buying From Pictures.

If you were buying a horse, would you make your purchase after seeing a picture of the animal, or would you insist upon seeing the horse? This sounds like a foolish question, but it has a point. Many persons who look this question silly often buy goods because they have seen pictures of the goods in mail order house catalogues and have taken a fancy to them. It is just as sensible to buy a horse from seeing his picture.

Economic Co-operation.

A recent interesting development reported by the shade tree commission of Plainfield, N. J., is its cooperation with the Charity Organization society, the commission having trees that are cut down or large dead limbs which have been removed from trees taken to the wood yard which is maintained by the society, where their cutting up furnishes work for the unemployed. This is economic co-operation.

THE GRAND PROMOTER

Another Good Thing Comes His Way With Money to Invest.

NOT EASY AS HE LOOKED.

Caller Wanted Profit of 5 or 10 Per Cent on His Investment—Gave the Major a Bogus Check That Made Him Moan.

[Copyright, 1908, by T. C. McClure.]—Major Crofoot, grand promoter, had been fighting, and he was a bit lonely. He owed his landlady, his landlady's father and a dozen different men who had taken chances and loaned him a dollar. He also owed for office rent and a gas bill, and the last shovel of coal had been fed into the stove. As assets he had the sum of 10 cents in cash. He was wondering how to make something go into something and have something over when there came a knock at his door. He made no reply, and it was repeated. It wasn't the aggressive knock of a landlord after buck rent nor yet the half hearted knock of his landlady come for the $2 he was owing, but yet feeling that she would never handle a penny of it, and at the third knock the major rose up and opened the door, and his heart beat again as he found a stranger there.

"(asth)le Major Crofoot's office" was asked.

"(asth)le, Come in."

"I'm looking for the Major Crofoot that has all sorts of good things to invest in."

"Then you have come to the right place. Have a chair."

"Thanks. Now, then, I don't wish to take up your valuable time. Have you got anything good on hand? I want something perfectly safe that will return me 5 or 10 per cent on the money."

The major began rubbing his hands and almost gasped for breath. Another sucker had come along at last. As soon as he could work up a smile and control his voice he said:

"My dear sir, I have got half a dozen of the best things going. When you speak of 5 or 10 per cent dividends it makes me smile. I don't deal in such small fish. Anything I take hold of must pay 30 per cent or I drop it."

"Good Lord," ejaculated the caller as he sat up.

"Thirty per cent at least, sir. What would you say to stocks paying dollar for dollar?"

"Can it be possible?"

"Perfectly possible, my dear sir. The Great American Chicken Gizzard company is going to do better than that this year. The fowls are fed on chick and their gizzards thus fattened. They are then cooked, spiced and canned. We shipped 10,000 cases to the east of Russia yesterday. He has no gizzard of his own, you know."

"And if I put in a thousand dollars I got the same amount back in dividends each year?"

"There is no more stock for sale, my dear sir. I just mentioned the Gizzard company as a sample of my work. There is the Perennial Cucumber company, but I'm afraid it's hardly good enough for you. It won't pay over 40 per cent this year."

"But I'm willing to take 40 per cent," replied the man. "Go on, but what man can ask for more than that?"

"Very fair, very fair," loftily replied the major, "but nothing to brag of. The line you have come direct to the office. I want to pick you out something extra. Let me see. The Universal Glass Eye company paid 60 per cent dividends two years ago, but last year dropped down to 30. It will be still less than that this year on account of hard times. Lots of one-eyed people will stick a patch over the eye and let it go at that. If you'd come in a month ago I could have let you in on the ground floor of the Magic Rat and Mouse Destroyer. The stock went like wildfire, and the last was sold at $200. We figure it will pay 400 per cent dividends for the next twenty years."

"And I can't get it? Thunder, but why didn't I know about it?"

"Greatest Thing in World."

"Greatest thing in the world, my dear sir. It is a trap that goes to the grocery and buys the cheese to bait itself and then comes home and follows rats and mice into their holes to catch them. Keeps its own tally and buries its own dead. Senator Foraker said he would rather be the inventor of that trap than to be president of the United States."

"But you must have something for me," insisted the caller in anxious tones.

"Let me see. Let me see. Humpf!

How absentminded I am this morning! Just as you knocked I was making up the incorporation papers for my last and best scheme. It's one that'll lay over all others. I was saving it to knock the year out."

"Good! Good! What is it?"

George, "old fellow, if you put me on to something good you shan't lose by it."

"You know what delicacies turtle soup and turtle steak are considered?"

"I do."

"And you know the high price frogs' legs bring?"

"Yes."

"Well, that's the basis of the Great Western Banquet company, just organized. We are going to rent nine square miles of Lake St. Clair flats and raise our frogs and turtles and can them on the spot. They will be canned in champagne, and the labels on the cans will be handsome enough to frame and hang in any one's parlor. Three turtle steaks and two dozen frogs' legs in every can. Killing and canning takes place every day. We shall control the market of the world. No banquet complete without our goods. The Emperor William writes—"

"I don't care a cuss what the Emperor William writes, but I want some of that stock!" interrupted the caller.

"What dividends do you figure on?"

"Well, last night I was figuring on a straight 100 per cent, but this morning I thought I ought to make a little allowance. Many turtles die of home sickness, you know, and a certain percent of the frogs are bound to jump the wire fences and get away. To be very safe and conservative I have put the dividends at 65 per cent. I think that is a rather neat figure, don't you?"

"Great! Great! I've been lending money at 4 per cent!"

"How—how much were you thinking of investing?" asked the major in a voice that trembled in spite of himself.

"Twenty thousand dollars, perhaps."

The major's knees grew weak and wobbly, and he had to sit down, and there was a lump in his throat as he asked:

"And you—will you pay something down to secure the stock?"

"A hundred dollars. Here's a check I'll endorse over to you, and I'll come in tomorrow and pay the balance and get the stock. By George, but I'm in luck! Just think of my getting hold of something paying 65 per cent dividends! You won't let Morgan buy the whole thing up and freeze me out, will you?"

Gives Caller Stock.

"No. You shall have the stock."

"And I'll remember you. I'll buy you a pearl pin out of the first dividend. If you want, when you get started I'll show you how to catch frogs for canning. There's a peculiar way of getting hold of them by one blind leg. Ninety-five per cent! I can't help but dwell on it."

"Yes; it's a good thing," replied the major as he showed the folded check into his vest pocket in a careless way.

"You will be in tomorrow?"

"Sure, Mike. If I was a Frenchman I'd kiss you for luck, but as I'm not we'll shake hands and I'll say to-ta tomorrow! Ninety-five per cent! Whoop!"

When he had gone, the major walked up and down to calm his racing heart. It didn't seem possible. He couldn't credit his good luck. Then at last he took the check from his pocket and looked at it to see what bank it was drawn on. His eyes opened wide, and he uttered a moan and staggered to a seat.

It was drawn in favor of "A. Sucker," endorsed by "Another Sucker" and signed by "Uncle Luke."

Then the light went out, and the grand promoter bowed his head and knew the bitterness of the green perdition.

As We Give.

If we go through life with a cold, selfish mental attitude, caring only for our own, always looking for the main chance, only thinking of our own comforts, totally indifferent to others, this attitude will, after awhile, harden the feelings and marshallize the affections, and we shall become dry, pessimistic and uninteresting. Try to hold the kindly, good will attitude toward everybody. If your nature is hard you will be surprised to see how it will soften under the new influence. You will become more sympathetic, more charitable toward other's weaknesses and failings, and you will grow more magnanimous and wholehearted. The good will attitude will make us more lovable, interesting and helpful. Others will look upon us in the same way in which we regard them. The cold, crabbed, unsocial, selfish person finds the same qualities reflected from others.

Perishable Property.

A "merchants' carnival" was in progress, and all the maidens of the village were representing the various shops. Pretty Sarah Moffatt, in a lace gown stung with garlands of honeysuckle, advertised the principal candy store.

At the beginning of the festival Sarah fairly glistered with attractive confectionery, but as time wore on the girl's decorations dwindled. By the final act, not a bonbon glittered among Sarah's ruffles.

"Where in the world," asked the stage manager, noting the plainness of Sarah's attire, "are all your decorations? Have you lost them?"

"No," returned Sarah, "they're perfectly safe. I'm wearing them inside."

Youth's Companion.

University Swine.

When a college paper presents a heading "University Swine Take Prizes" there is likely to be a little puzzlement over the exact meaning. "Honors for Varsity Corn" is not much clearer.

The explanation of the same is found in the fact that the agricultural departments of several universities, notably the state universities of the middle west, send exhibits to fairs and displays of all kinds.

Very often the cattle or food products are exhibited not directly by the university, but by some graduate. The college, however, gets the glory.

"Twenty thousand dollars, perhaps."

The major's knees grew weak and wobbly, and he had to sit down, and there was a lump in his throat as he asked:

"And you—will you pay something down to secure the stock?"

"A hundred dollars. Here's a check I'll endorse over to you, and I'll come in tomorrow and pay the balance and get the stock. By George, but I'm in luck! Just think of my getting hold of something paying 65 per cent dividends! You won't let Morgan buy the whole thing up and freeze me out, will you?"

Gives Caller Stock.

"No. You shall have the stock."

"And I'll remember you. I'll buy you a pearl pin out of the first dividend. If you want, when you get started I'll show you how to catch frogs for canning. There's a peculiar way of getting hold of them by one blind leg. Ninety-five per cent! I can't help but dwell on it."

"Yes; it's a good thing," replied the major as he showed the folded check into his vest pocket in a careless way.

"You will be in tomorrow?"

"Sure, Mike. If I was a Frenchman I'd kiss you for luck, but as I'm not we'll shake hands and I'll say to-ta tomorrow! Ninety-five per cent! Whoop!"

When he had gone, the major walked up and down to calm his racing heart. It didn't seem possible. He couldn't credit his good luck. Then at last he took the check from his pocket and looked at it to see what bank it was drawn on. His eyes opened wide, and he uttered a moan and staggered to a seat.

It was drawn in favor of "A. Sucker," endorsed by "Another Sucker" and signed by "Uncle Luke."

Then the light went out, and the grand promoter bowed his head and knew the bitterness of the green perdition.

As We Give.

If we go through life with a cold, selfish mental attitude, caring only for our own, always looking for the main chance, only thinking of our own comforts, totally indifferent to others, this attitude will, after awhile, harden the feelings and marshallize the affections, and we shall become dry, pessimistic and uninteresting. Try to hold the kindly, good will attitude toward everybody. If your nature is hard you will be surprised to see how it will soften under the new influence. You will become more sympathetic, more charitable toward other's weaknesses and failings, and you will grow more magnanimous and wholehearted. The good will attitude will make us more lovable, interesting and helpful. Others will look upon us in the same way in which we regard them. The cold, crabbed, unsocial, selfish person finds the same qualities reflected from others.

Perishable Property.

A "merchants' carnival" was in progress, and all the maidens of the village were representing the various shops. Pretty Sarah Moffatt, in a lace gown stung with garlands of honeysuckle, advertised the principal candy store.

At the beginning of the festival Sarah fairly glistered with attractive confectionery, but as time wore on the girl's decorations dwindled. By the final act, not a bonbon glittered among Sarah's ruffles.

"Where in the world," asked the stage manager, noting the plainness of Sarah's attire, "are all your decorations? Have you lost them?"

"No," returned Sarah, "they're perfectly safe. I'm wearing them inside."

Youth's Companion.

University Swine.

When a college paper presents a heading "University Swine Take Prizes" there is likely to be a little puzzlement over the exact meaning. "Honors for Varsity Corn" is not much clearer.

The explanation of the same is found in the fact that the agricultural departments of several universities, notably the state universities of the middle west, send exhibits to fairs and displays of all kinds.

Very often the cattle or food products are exhibited not directly by the university, but by some graduate. The college, however, gets the glory.

ROPHONIA: Your grocer has Gold Medal Flour. GENEVA.

George, "old fellow, if you put me on to something good you shan't lose by it."

"You know what delicacies turtle soup and turtle steak are considered?"

"I do."

"And you know the high price frogs' legs bring?"

"Yes."

"Well, that's the basis of the Great Western Banquet company, just organized. We are going to rent nine square miles of Lake St. Clair flats and raise our frogs and turtles and can them on the spot. They will be canned in champagne, and the labels on the cans will be handsome enough to frame and hang in any one's parlor. Three turtle steaks and two dozen frogs' legs in every can. Killing and canning takes place every day. We shall control the market of the world. No banquet complete without our goods. The Emperor William writes—"

"I don't care a cuss what the Emperor William writes, but I want some of that stock!" interrupted the caller.

"What dividends do you figure on?"

"Well, last night I was figuring on a straight 100 per cent, but this morning I thought I ought to make a little allowance. Many turtles die of home sickness, you know, and a certain percent of the frogs are bound to jump the wire fences and get away. To be very safe and conservative I have put the dividends at 65 per cent. I think that is a rather neat figure, don't you?"

"Great! Great! I've been lending money at 4 per cent!"

"How—how much were you thinking of investing?" asked the major in a voice that trembled in spite of himself.

"Twenty thousand dollars, perhaps."

The major's knees grew weak and wobbly, and he had to sit down, and there was a lump in his throat as he asked:

"And you—will you pay something down to secure the stock?"

"A hundred dollars. Here's a check I'll endorse over to you, and I'll come in tomorrow and pay the balance and get the stock. By George, but I'm in luck! Just think of my getting hold of something paying 65 per cent dividends! You won't let Morgan buy the whole thing up and freeze me out, will you?"

"Yes; it's a good thing," replied the major as he showed the folded check into his vest pocket in a careless way.

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL ARTIST'S MODEL IN THE WORLD.

A short time ago a young woman came to Chicago to complete her college education in the east. Happening to take up the vocation of an artist's model as a means of passing away the time, she has in that short period created such a furore as to be pronounced the most beautiful as well as the most classical artist's model in America. She is of French Canadian ancestry and a cousin of Sir Gilbert Parker. The points of America's most beautiful model are as follows:

Height—5 feet 6½ inches.
 Bust—38 inches.
 Waist—23 inches.
 Hips—35 inches.
 Eyes—Violet.
 Hair—Black.
 Skin—Extremely fair.
 Age—20 years.

Excessive Drinking

Orrino Destroys the Craving for Drink. Sold Under Positive Guarantee.

Excessive or continued use of alcoholic beverages always results in a diseased condition of the nervous system. The drinking man is often heard to say, "I can stop of my own free will and when I wish," but the poor fellow is now devoid of the power to act at the proper time and in the right way. It is too late, the craving has secured a firm hold and because of the diseased nervous system he has not the ability for sustained effort. The result is all too true.

Drunkenness is no longer considered a crime; eminent scientists and physicians have agreed that it is a disease and must be treated as such. The home treatment that has been used for a number of years, and is highly successful, is Orrino. It is sold under a positive guarantee that if it does not effect a cure your money will be refunded.

Orrino is in two forms. When desiring to give secretly, purchase Orrino No. 1, and if the patient will voluntarily take the treatment, Orrino No. 2 should be given. The guarantee is the same in either case. Orrino costs but $1.00 per box. Mailed in plain sealed wrapper on receipt of price. Write for free treatise on "Drunkenness" mailed in sealed envelope by The Orrino Co., Washington, D. C., and in this city by People's Drug Co. and King's Pharmacy.

On one side flows the Hudson and from its placid waters every tourist views with awe and inspiration the granite columns of the classical tomb where rests the dead hero. This approach to the tomb in along Riverside Drive, the most aristocratic of all the New York Avenues. The tomb itself is most imposing. The bodies of President Grant and his wife lie side by side, each in a sarcophagus. Surrounding the entry room are the tattered battle flags from the regiment which Grant led to victory in the triumphs of war, before he became president of the United States and acquired his even more pronounced triumphs of peace.

BLUE TUSSOR.

A charming idea for a blue tussor frock. The buttons are covered with the material and the stock is heavy cream lace. A narrow band of velvet a shade darker than material finished the round neck, below which is a pretty little design in hand embroidered ery done in blue silk.

DISASTER OVERTAKES LAUNCH OFF SANTA CATALINA.

Cruiser Buffalo Rescues Author and Family, but Loses One of Its Seamen.

Avalon, Island of Santa Catalina, Cal., May 28.—Capt. A. Crist of the launch Zoua of Avalon, and C. E. Hoeline, ordinary seaman on the United States converted cruiser Buffalo, were drowned, and B. B. Easton, wife, two small children and colored nurse were rescued by the Buffalo on the high seas Tuesday night, after drifting helplessly for two days in a small launch. Capt. Crist was lost from the launch Sunday night several miles off Avalon in a mysterious manner. A small rowboat is missing from the launch, and search is being continued for the captain in the hope that he may be found alive. Seaman Hoeline was lost overboard from the Buffalo in effecting the rescue of Mr. Easton and his party from the launch Tuesday evening while a heavy sea was running off the western coast of the island. Another sailor dived overboard in an unsuccessful attempt to rescue Hoeline and was himself barely saved.

Easton is a former war correspondent of Harper's Weekly, an author of considerable reputation, and was formerly secretary to Webster Davis, assistant secretary of the interior under President McKinley. Easton and his family were brought to Avalon by the Buffalo. They had a frightful experience, being for two days without food, and all were in a state of nervous collapse when landed from the cruiser. After landing the Easton party here the Buffalo returned to the scene of the drownings and is cruising about, hoping to pick up Capt. Crist or the body of the drowned sailor.

Young Fullerton Quite Free Now.
 St. Louis, May 28.—According to a telegram received here from Alfred Butro, a New York attorney, by S. N. Fullerton, a wealthy lumber merchant of this city, the charges of abduction brought against Robert S. Fullerton, his son, in New York have been quashed. The dispatch also says that young Fullerton is not a fugitive from justice on the high seas, as has been reported, but is in San Francisco. Fullerton was recently arrested at San Francisco by New York detectives and later released on habeas corpus proceedings.

Nature's Warning.
 If the eyes close irritably at the light, if they twitch or the eyelids jump or blink rapidly after some strain of work, if the eyelids reddens in strong light and nervous crow's feet or wrinkles appear around the eyes, any time before at least 50 years of age, then trouble lies ahead if the eyes are neglected.

Reason for Wedding Ring.
 By giving his wife a ring, a husband is supposed to take her fully into his confidence. The fact that the left hand has been chosen to wear it, signifies that as the left is weaker than the right, so is a wife subject to her husband, while the third finger has been selected because of an old superstition that from the third finger of the left hand runs a vein directly to the heart.

Misera.
 There is a perpetual frost in the pockets of some rich people, as soon as they put their hands into them, they are frozen so they cannot draw out their purses. Had I my way, I would hang all misers; but reversing the common mode, I would hang them up by the heels, that their money might run out of their pockets.—Rowland Hill.

J. Minter, H. B. Allen, W. H. Gilbert, Roy Segel, T. A. Mulson, R. F. Miller, composing the editorial staff, and one other student have been suspended by the faculty, and the suspension made final.

THE TAFT SUITE RESERVED IN THE AUDITORIUM ANNEX AT CHICAGO FOR THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION

MAP SHOWING THE ARTIFICIAL LAKE WHICH WILL SUPPLY LONDON WHEN IT HAS A POPULATION REACHING THE ENORMOUS TOTAL OF 16,500,000.

London, Eng.—The construction of an artificial lake over 50 miles in circumference is an engineering feat about to be undertaken in London. From this lake it will secure its water supply of the future. The water pollution has been meeting the demands for more efficient water supply in a thoroughly practical and far-sighted manner. Their plan is to build a dam 50 feet high, which will supply the city of London for a number of years, but they are planning for future population up to 16,500,000 people, which is estimated will be reached in 1964. The abutments and foundations are so planned that dam will be increased up to 100 feet, which will give a total capacity of 55,000,000,000 gallons.

As indicated on the map, this lake will be built about 10 miles southwest of Reading, on a branch of the Kennet river. The stream which is to be dammed up will not furnish the required amount of water and thus will have to be pumped from the Thames river into the lake. The dotted lines show the proposed course of the trunk water line from the lake to the city. The estimated cost of the lake will be £20 per million gallons, but in the supplemental and larger scheme this cost will be reduced to £20 per million gallons, making the cost of the lake when completed £1,500.

Chapter Four

THE scene is at Hazely, Lord Dunstanbury's Essex seat. His lordship is sitting at the top of his breakfast table.

"I say, Cousin Meg, old Brownlow's got a deuced pretty kitchen maid."

"There you go! There you go! Just like your father and your grandfather and all of them! If the English people had any spirit they'd have swept the Dunstanburies and all the wicked Whigs gang into the sea long ago."

"Before you could turn around they'd have bought it up, enclosed it and won an election by opening it to ships at a small fee on Sundays," said Mr. Pinder. "Why are Whigs worse than Tories?" inquired Mr. Pikes, with an air of patient inquiry.

"The will of heaven, I suppose," said Lady Margaret Duddington. "To display divine omnipotence in that line," suggested Mr. Pinder.

"A deuced pretty girl!" said Dunstanbury in reflective tones. He was doing his best to reproduce the impression he had received at Morpington hall, but obviously with no great success.

"On some pretext, frivolous though it be, let us drive over and see this miracle," Pinder suggested. "How could we better employ this last day of our visit? You'll drive us over, Percival?"

"No, thank you, Mr. Pinder," said the young man, resolute in wisdom. "I'll come over if you like."

"I'll come with you," said Pikes. "But how account for ourselves? Old Brownlow is unknown to us."

"If Percival had been going I'd have had nothing to do with it, but I don't mind taking you two old dillies," said Lady Margaret. "I wanted to pay a call on Elizabeth Brownlow anyhow. We were at school together once. But I won't guarantee you a sight of the kitchen maid."

"It's a pretty drive for this part of the country," observed Dunstanbury. "It may well become your favorite road," smiled Mr. Pinder benevolently. "And since Lady Meg goes with us, it's already ours," added Mr. Pikes gallantly.

So they went to go on for hours at a time, as Dunstanbury has declared, both at Hazely when they were there and at Lady Meg's house in Berkeley square, where they almost always were. They were pleased to consider themselves politicians—Pikes a Whig, twenty years behind date; Pinder a Tory, 200. It was all an affectionate assumption for the purpose, but with the very doubtful result of amusing Lady Meg. To Dunstanbury the two old wags—for wags of the sea of society they were for all that each had a sufficient income to his name and a respectable life behind him—were shortly tiresome, and there seems little ground to differ from his opinion. But they were old family friends, and he endured with his usual graciousness. Their patronage they would hardly have glibly at a word—was a more notable personage. Lady Meg—the world generally and Sophy always spoke of her by that style, and we may take the same liberty—was only child of the great Earl of Dunstanbury. The title and estates passed to his grandnephew, but half a million or so of pounds came to her.

The air of the household was stormy that day at Morpington—an incentive to the expedition, not a deterrent, for Lady Meg had known it. Sophy was in some disgrace—accused, tried and convicted of insubordination and unseemly demeanor toward Mrs. Smilker. The truth seems to be that this good woman (best her soul. She has a neat tombstone in Morpington churchyard) loved, like many another good creature, good ale sometimes a trifle too well, and the orders she gave when she had been plentiful did not always comport with her less mellow injunctions. In no vulgar directness, but with a sarcasm which Mrs. Smilker felt without understanding, Sophy would point out these inconsistencies. Angered and humiliated, fearful, too, perhaps that her subordinate would let the secret out, Mrs. Smilker made haste to have the first word with the powers, and against the word of the cook the word of the cook maid weighed as naught. After smaller troubles of this origin there had come a sort of crisis lately. The longed-for of long lectures and repeated, slightly condensed, by master, then she was sent away to think it over. An abject apology to outraged Mrs. Smilker must be forthcoming or banishment was the decree. Informed of this ultimatum, Sophy went out and hung about the avenue, hoping for Julia to appear. Soon Julia came and heard the story. She had indignation in readiness and, what was more to the purpose, a plan. Soon Sophy's eyes grew bright.

Into this storm tossed home came Lady Meg and her spaniels. This unkind name, derived at first from the size and shape of Mr. Pinder's ears—they were large and luvver over at the top—had been stretched to include Mr. Pikes also, with small loss of propriety. Both gentlemen were low of stature, plump of figure, hairy on the face; both followed obediently at the heels of commanding Lady Meg. The amenities of the luncheon table opened heartily. Very soon the tale of Sophy's heights was revealed. Incidentally and unobtrusively it flopped her fault was to appear in the true measure the fall of the Brownlow's benevolence was reckoned. But Mrs. Brownlow won small comfort from Lady Meg. She got a stiff touch of the truth. "Run in and out of the drawing room!" she said. "Did she? The truth is, Lizzie, you've spoiled her, and now you're angry with her for being spoiled."

"What is she now, Mrs. Brownlow?" asked Pinder, with a sly intention. Was this Percival's dearest girl? She works in the kitchen, Mr. Pinder.

"The girl!" his eyes signaled to Mr. Pikes. "Let Lady Meg see her," he urged insistently. "She has a wonderful way with girls."

"I don't want to see her, and I know your game, Pinder," said Lady Meg. "I'm afraid she won't go," sighed Mrs. Brownlow. Her husband said, more robustly, that such an event would be, with the rest of the conversation, by the better (one William Byles, still living, to the gratified ears of Mrs. Smilker, in the kitchen).

"But I'm not child and look it," she said. "I don't know about her future. She's an odd cuss, and looks it."

"Pretty?" This from Mr. Pinder. "Well, I don't know. Striking looking, you'd rather say perhaps, Mr. Pinder."

"Let her go her own way. We've talked quite enough about her," Lady Meg sounded decisive and not a little bored. "And then," Mrs. Brownlow made bold to go on for a moment, "such a funny mark! My wife wouldn't like it, I'm sure."

Lady Meg turned sharply on her. "Mark? What do you mean? What mark?"

"A mark on her face, you know. A round red mark."

"Big as a threepenny bit, pretty nearly," said the squire.

"Where?"

"On her cheek."

"Where is the girl?" asked Lady Meg. Her whole demeanor had changed, her bored air had vanished. "She seemed fair enough," Mr. Byles reports. Then she turned to the said Byles: "Find out where that girl is, and let me know. Don't tell her anything about it. I'll go to her."

"But let me send for her!" began the squire courteously.

"No, give me my own way. I don't want her frightened."

The squire gave the orders she desired, and the last Mr. Byles heard as he left the room was from Lady Meg: "Marks like that always mean something—eh, Pinder?"

No doubt Mr. Pinder agreed, but his reply to Lady Meg was not her plan. Sophy would not bow her head to Mrs. Smilker nor longer eat the bread of benevolence untroubled by servitude. She would go with Julia. She, too, would tread the boards if only she could get her feet on them. And when did any girl actually doubt her ability to do that? The pair were gay and laughing when suddenly through the gate came Lady Meg and the spaniels, Lady Meg ahead as usual and with a purposeful air.

"Who are they?" cried Sophy.

Hazely is but twelve miles from Morpington. Julia had been over to see the big house and had sighted Lady Meg in the garden.

"It's Lady Margaret Duddington," she whispered, rather in a fright. There was time for no more. Lady Meg was upon them. Sophy was identified by her dress and, to Lady Meg's decouraging eyes, by the mark.

"You're the girl who's been behaving so badly?" she said.

Meeting no profit in arguing the merits, Sophy answered "Yes."

At this point Julia observed one old gentleman nudge the other and whisper something. It is morally certain that Pinder whispered to Pikes, "Percival's girl!"

"You seem to like your own way. What are you going to do—say 'you're sorry'?"

"No, I'm not sorry. I'm going away."

"Come here, girl. Let me look at you."

Sophy obeyed, walking up to Lady Meg and fixing her eyes on her face. She was interested, not frightened, as it seemed. Lady Meg looked long at her.

"Going away? Where to?"

Julia spoke up. "She's coming with me, please, Lady Margaret." Julia, it would seem, was a little frightened.

"Who are you?"

"I'm Julia, your daughter."

"What a lovely girl!" said Lady Meg. "I'm glad to see you. I'll go with you."

"Who are you?"

"I'm Julia, your daughter."

Natural Digestion

Kodol contains all digestive elements. It does more than the stomach does. It accomplishes, in addition, what the bowels do, what the saliva does, toward digestion. No other digester does that.

There is no such thing as a cure for dyspepsia. No matter how well talk about a cure for lame ankles.

Nature must do the curing. And Nature will do it when given the chance.

Toxins and stimulants may seem to help for a time. But their effect comes only from spurring the stomach to action. And weakness cannot be cured with a spur.

One must nurse the stomach. Let Kodol do, for a little time, what the stomach fails to do.

Help it as you help a lame ankle. Rest it, as you rest other organs that need to recuperate. And stop the irritation of hard, undigested food.

You will be surprised to note how quickly the stomach can regain its strength.

All modern treatments for indigestion aim at this relief. But they aim in different ways.

Some advise dieting. That brings partial relief by omitting some elements which the stomach can't digest.

But the omitted foods are important. The body requires many food-elements. When you cut some of them out, you are robbing your strength.

How can Nature restore digestive strength if you deprive it of nourishment?

Another common way is to take pepsin, or digesters which depend almost solely on pepsin.

That helps a little, for pepsin digests albumen. But only part of your food is albumen. Pepsin can't digest starch; it can't digest fat. What will become of them?

It is essential to have a digester which contains all the elements of digestion.

"Julia! Robb! My mother lives there." She pointed to Woodbine cottage.

"I—I'm on the stage!"

"Lord help you!" remarked Lady Meg disconcertingly.

"Not at all!" protested Julia, her mingling plain, her expression of it faulty. "And I—I'm going to help her to get an engagement. We're friends."

"What's she going to do with that on the stage?" Lady Meg's forehead almost touched the mark.

"Oh, that's all right, Lady Margaret. Just a little cold cream and powder."

"Nasty stuff!" said Lady Meg. A pause followed. Lady Meg still studying Sophy's face. Then, without turning around, she made a remark obviously addressed to the gentlemen behind her:

"I expect this is Percival's young person."

"Without a doubt," said Pikes.

"And Percival was right about her, too," said Pinder. "Think so? I don't sure yet," said Lady Meg. "And at any rate, I don't care twopenny about that. But—A long pause marked a renewed scrutiny. "Your name's Sophy, isn't it?"

"Yes," Sophy hesitated, then forced out the words, "Sophy Grouch."

"Grouch?"

"Humph! Well, Sophy, don't go on the stage. It's a poor affair, the stage, begging Miss Julia's pardon. I'm sure she'll do admirably at it. But a poor affair it is. There's not much to be said for the real thing, but it's a deal better than the stage, Sophy."

"The real thing?" Julia saw Sophy's eyes grow thoughtful.

"The women—places—London—Paris—men and women—Lord help them! Come with me, and I'll show you all that!"

To be continued.

There is no way of making lasting friends like "Staking In" and "Doctor Pierce's" medicines will exemplify this, and their friends, after more than two decades of popularity, are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. They have "made good" and they have not made druggists.

A good, honest, square-deal medicine of known composition is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It still enjoys an immense sale, while most of the preparations that have come into prominence in the earlier period of its popularity have "gone by the board" and are never more heard of. There must be some reason for this long-time popularity and that is to be found in its superior merits. When once given a fair trial for weak stomach, or for liver and blood ailments, its superior curative qualities are soon manifest; hence it has survived and grown in popularity, while scores of less meritorious articles have suddenly faded into favor for a brief period and then been as soon forgotten.

For a torpid liver with its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, nervousness, dizziness, and other ailments, it is a tonic with better taste, loss of appetite, with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It's an honest, square-deal medicine, and its ingredients printed on bottle-wrapper—no secret, no hocus-pocus humbug, therefore don't accept a substitute that the dealer may possibly make a little bigger profit. Fasten on your right to have what you call for.

Don't buy Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription expecting it to prove a "cure-all." It is only advised for women's special ailments. It takes weak women strong and invigorating tonic and strengthening nerve. It is unequalled. It won't satisfy those who want "booster," for there is not a drop of alcohol in it.

It is nothing else which contains all the needed elements. That is why Kodol is liquid. And, because it is liquid, like the digestive juices, its action is almost instant.

This is very easily proved. Take Kodol after the meal, and note the absence of pain, of fermentation, of gas. It is evident that the food is digesting.

Or mix Kodol with food in a test tube, under proper conditions, and one can see it digest. Not part of the food, as with pepsin, but all of it.

You can find no other digester which will moisten such a food, for there is none.

Will you use a digester that goes but half way? Or will you give to the stomach that complete relief which comes only from the use of Kodol?

Our Guarantee

You may prove, without the risk of a penny, what Kodol can do. Buy one large bottle, and ask your druggist for the signed guarantee. If the results are not satisfactory, take the empty bottle back and your druggist will return your money.

This offer is made on the large bottle only, and to but one in a family. That will amply prove how much Kodol means to you. Then please tell your friends who need this help how easy it is to obtain it.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago. The $1.00 bottle contains 2½ times as much as the 50¢ bottle.

One of the worst wrecks of recent years along the New York coast occurred last week when the four-masted ship Peter Rickmers went down. It was thought for a long time that the crew would be lost, but they were eventually saved by heroic work on the part of the life savers.

The Rickmers, under charter from Standard Oil company, sailed from New York on Thursday last in a driving storm. She was loaded with 117,000 ten-gallon cases of oil and bound for Glasgow, Birmah. Captain Buchanan cleared Sunday Hook on that day and started eastward. The gale blowing at that time drove her on the bar at Zeeh's Inlet. She was unable to work herself from the bar and the next morning tugs were sent from the city.

The throwing overboard of the thousand cases of oil to lighten the ship has proved a great find for the beachcombers along the coast.

When it was found the men on shore were getting all worth thousands it was decided to punch a hole in each can as it was thrown overboard. The oystermen objected to this and orders were given that any oil jettisoned must be in cases, because of the oysters.

for beds near the inlets affected. The cases were then thrown overboard. Some of the men along the beach have gathered as many as a hundred of them, worth more than a dollar a case. The salvage amounts to a likely sum.
